MAYO CLINIC

Heather M. Rose, PhD, JD

Executive Director – Business Development

Heather M. Rose, PhD, JD, is Executive Director of Business Development at Mayo Clinic, where she leads strategic business development and external innovation initiatives for the Phoenix campus. She develops partnerships with industry, healthcare organizations, entrepreneurs, and investors to accelerate the translation of scientific and clinical innovations into technologies that improve patient care.

Her work spans strategic alliances, licensing, commercialization, intellectual property strategy and startup creation, helping bring transformative therapies, diagnostics, medical devices, digital health and emerging technologies to patients more quickly.

Drawing on a background in molecular genetics, intellectual property law and technology commercialization, Dr. Rose works at the intersection of science, medicine, and business to advance Mayo Clinic's mission of delivering the best possible care to every patient through innovation.

Our primary value

The needs of the patient come first
